FOURTEENTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME — YEAR B 8 JULY 2018

READINGS: Ezek 2:2-5; 2 Cor 12:7-10; Mk 6:1-6.

A prophet was someone who had received a divine call to speak God's word to His people. Even though the word of God could be a hard word, it was a word of love because it meant that God had not abandoned His people. God's spokesman had to be prepared for opposition and rejection. As it was for the Old Testament prophets, so it was for Jesus Himself.

At the close of His Galilean ministry Jesus is rejected by the people of His home town. They can't bring themselves to believe in the greatness of someone who is one of themselves. Consequently, His power is ineffective there. It is an anticipation of Jesus' rejection by the Jewish nation

Gospel Reflection

Disturb us, O Lord,
when we are too well pleased with ourselves;
when our dreams have come true because we dreamed too little;
when we have arrived safely
because we sailed too close to the shore.
Stir us, O Lord, to dare more boldly,
to venture more seas,
where storms shall show Your mastery,
where losing sight of land we shall find the stars.
In the name of Him who pushed back the horizons of our hopes
and invited the brave to follow Him. Amen.

My dear people,

Pope Francis, in his letter REJOICE AND BE GLAD, highlights five expressions of love for God and neighbour that he regards as important.

1. Perseverance, patience, and meekness

If we are solidly grounded in God we will find in ourselves an inner strength enabling us to persevere amid life's ups and downs. Thus we can give a witness to the world through patience and constancy in doing good. Those who put their faith in God can also be faithful to others. St Paul bade the Romans never to repay evil with evil, but to overcome evil with good. This is not a sign of weakness but of strength. When we feel overwhelmed, we can always cling to the anchor of prayer, which puts us back in God's hands. "Have no anxiety about anything; but in everything, by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts" (PHILIPPIANS 4:6-7).

It is striking that at times, while claiming to uphold the other Commandments, Christians completely ignore the eighth, which forbids bearing false witness or lying or vilifying others. It is so easy to get caught up in networks of verbal violence through the internet and various forms of digital communication. Strengthened by grace, Christ's followers avoid the verbal violence that is so much a part of life today. Grace makes possible meekness of heart. Christians hesitate to treat others harshly, considering others better than themselves. Without humiliations there is no humility or holiness, remembering that the holiness God bestows on His Church comes through the humiliation of His Son. Humiliation makes us resemble Jesus - it is an unavoidable aspect of the imitation of Christ.

2. Joy and a sense of humour

Far from being timid or melancholy, Christ's followers are joyful and full of good humour. The prophet Isaiah continually sings of the joy the Saviour's coming will bring. Our Lady sang: "My spirit rejoices". Hard times may come when the Cross enters our lives, yet nothing can destroy the joy of knowing we are infinitely loved. Ill humour is no sign of holiness. In fact, sadness can be a sign of ingratitude. We can get so caught up in ourselves that we are unable to recognise God's gifts. St Francis could be overwhelmed with gratitude before a piece of hard bread. This is not the joy offered by today's consumerist culture. Consumerism only bloats the heart. It can offer pleasure, but not joy.

3. Boldness and passion

Holiness is also a boldness, an impulse to evangelise and to leave a mark on the world. How often we are tempted to keep close to the shore while, all the time, Jesus is calling us to put out into the deep and let down our nets. He bids us spend our lives in His service. We need the Spirit's prompting lest we be paralysed by fear. When the apostles were tempted to let themselves be crippled by danger, they joined in prayer. As a result, they were filled with the Holy Spirit. Complacency is seductive, telling us there is no point in trying to change things, whereas God is eternal newness. He is always impelling us to set out anew.

More than bureaucrats and functionaries, the Church needs passionate missionaries. The Saints surprise and confound us because by their lives they urge us to abandon a dull and dreary mediocrity. Let us ask the Lord for the grace not to hesitate when the Spirit calls us to take a step forward.

4. Community

Growth in holiness is a journey in community, side by side with others. When we live apart from others we can grow too isolated, lose our sense of reality, and succumb to the devil's temptations. In the Church's history we have wonderful examples of religious communities giving their lives to God and witnessing to each other. In holy marriages, too, each spouse becomes a means used by Christ for the sanctification of the other. Living or working alongside others is a sure path of spiritual growth. St John of the Cross told one of his followers: "You are living with others in order to be fashioned and tried."

Christian community is fed by sharing God's Word and celebrating the Eucharist. In turn, the Word and the Eucharist create community - a missionary community, symbolised by the priest's command at the end of Mass: "Go, you are sent forth." Eucharist is the highlight, of course. But life, whether in the family, the parish, the religious community or any other, is made up of small everyday things. Let's not forget that Jesus asked his disciples to pay attention to details:

- * The little detail that wine was running out at a party.
- * The little detail that one sheep was missing.
- * The little detail of noticing a widow offering her two small coins.
- * The little detail of asking the disciples how much bread they had.

5. In constant prayer

Though it may seem obvious, we should remember that holiness consists in an habitual openness to God, expressed in prayer and adoration. We all have need of silence, and in that silence we discern what God is asking of us. Otherwise, any decisions we make may only be window dressing. For every disciple, it is essential to spend time with the Master, listening to His Words, and learning from Him. And unless we listen, all our words to Him are simply useless chatter.

In prayer we realise we have a history, filled with God's mercy. God knows the smallest details of our lives. Having once been an agnostic, Blessed Charles de Foucauld said: "As soon as I believed that there was a God, I understood that I could do nothing other than to live for Him."
